About Quest

With over 20 years of experience, Quest provides bespoke HR and Health & Safety solutions that ensure compliance and mitigate risk for small and medium sized businesses. Supporting over 100,000 businesses & organisations for the likes of the British Chambers of Commerce, and numerous trade associations Quest is able to design personalised packages for your business, whatever its size and requirements.

We have made it our responsibility to fully understand client needs before personalising solutions. This ensures that Human Resources, Health and Safety and training solutions complement client organisations' strategic plans, helping them to concentrate on achieving their goals. Unlike some other providers Quest has developed a complete solution to client Human Resource and Health and Safety needs. With all the elements of support, security and protection being provided by Quest 'under one roof'.

Bespoke HR services

Quest offers trusted HR support that businesses can count on when it really matters. Our team of experts will support you with flexible solutions aligned to meet your specific needs, recognising that many small businesses don't have the in-house expertise to compliantly manage issues such as employment law, employee contracts, disciplinary matters, absence management and much more.

Quest provides a wide range of essential HR services that not only help ensure compliance and minimise risk, but also save you time. This allows you to focus on what you do best, which is running your business – whether you're a start-up or established company.

These made-to-measure HR services are provided by Quest's qualified employment law and HR specialists, who are on hand 24/7, 365 days a year to offer trusted and pragmatic advice.

Trusted H&S support

Whichever industry your business operates in, you must adhere to Health & Safety (H&S) compliance measures. In recent years, increased activity from the Health and Safety Executive, which is a government body that enforces compliance, means that no stone should be left unturned in this area. Alongside this, under the Health & Safety at Work Act 1974, all employers must ensure people are safe at work and that employees have a firm understanding of H&S.

With these legal obligations in mind and the need to protect your business of growing importance, having a trusted H&S strategy in place is vital. As a leading H&S specialist, Quest can carry out a comprehensive audit of your existing processes and identify areas for improvement. They will then work closely with you to create a plan, help implement these changes, before managing this on an ongoing basis.
